

CTO

We are building the world's leading digital sports company we are now looking for our new CTO.

You have extensive knowledge around what makes a successful tech strategy when building a business that operates online. You will be a central part of the everyday business decisions and also initiate and evaluate potential product development partnerships.

Who do we think you are?

You have worked in a senior role in a midsize to big team/company and you are looking to take the next step. You want to be a big part of something small with a expansive plan over the coming three years.

As an expert you strive to optimize the overall business results. You like working with the impact of prioritization between time and output in a short- and long-term perspective. You are hands-on in your approach and take on challenges in full solution mode.

You understand the tech needs for operating data driven businesses and preferably you have worked within gaming.

How do we see ourselves?

We are a Swedish tech company operating globally. We have partnered with high profile football clubs helping them to monetise on their fan base by delivering high value entertainment and strengthening their brand online. We are leading the digital transformation within sports industry.

Send your application to a.klingstrom@icyougroup.com. Mark application CTO.

