

Partner Relationship Manager

Do you love sports? Is football a big part of your everyday life? Do you want to work with the strongest brands and biggest clubs on the market? Our partners, the big football clubs, together has over 500 million followers through the biggest social media channels. We have a unique opportunity to launch digital products with significant impact. To build new and strengthen existing partnerships we are now looking for a Partner Relationship Manager to join us.

Who do we think you are?

You are used to handle big clients. You have experience from both bringing in new and develop existing accounts and view yourself as a doer. Sports is our focus and we find it important that you are sports fan with focus on football. Experience from the sports industry is an advantage. Travelling is a big part of this role and it is something that you see as a positive thing.

You will be the expert and as an expert you strive for perfection. You like working with high impact decisions while being hands-on in your approach and take on challenges in full solution mode. This role reports directly to the CEO.

How do we see ourselves?

We are a Swedish tech company operating globally. We have partnered with high profile football clubs helping them to monetise on their fan base by delivering high value entertainment and strengthening their brand online. We are leading the digital transformation within sports industry. We are building an expert organization where everyone will be part of the company's success.

Send your application to a.klingstrom@icyougroup.com. Mark application PRM.

